Over the last 12 years, we have championed the next generation of playwrights and toured new plays to audiences far and wide.

Our inaugural season of New Tricks plays – commissioned by Box of Tricks and developed with leading local theatres – was so successful that all three plays enjoyed a future life:

Plastic Figurines by Ella Carmen Greenhill attracted universal acclaim ("A quietly courageous play" $- \star \star \star \star$ The Guardian) on a six-week national tour in Spring 2015 followed by a remounted four-week transfer to New Diorama London in Autumn 2016 ($\star \star \star \star$ The Times).

Narvik by Lizzie Nunnery – winner of Best New Play at UK Theatre Awards 2017, finalist for the US/UK Susan Smith Blackburn Prize 2017 and Best New Play at Manchester Theatre Awards 2018 – ran at Liverpool Playhouse Studio in Autumn 2015 ("Thrillingly theatrical" - ★★★★ The Guardian) and wowed audiences and critics on an eight-week national tour in Spring 2017("Spellbinding" - ★★★★ The Stage | ★★★★ The Times, The Observer, The i Paper).

In Spring 2016, we took Chip Shop Chips by Becky Prestwich to non-theatre spaces on a completely sold-out Northern tour ("All-round feel-good" –  * * Reviews Hub) and remounted the show for a seven-week sold-out national tour last Spring.

Our most recent seasons (2015-18) have been a huge success: attracting critical acclaim, engaging a broad spectrum of audiences and raising our profile nationally. More than 11,000 people saw these productions as we took new plays to leading theatres nationwide as well as non-theatre spaces in urban and rural locations up and down the country.
